

Damn Right!

The Eclectic Bastards do not abuse kittens. We do not run over manatees with motorboats, nor do we condone excessive fishing with dynamite. We do, however, intend to rock everyone's body while we take over the world. Our style defies categorization; we can play an acoustic set at a coffeshop or a screeching rock show in a downtown club.

This EP is a collection of original songs selected to exemplify the energy and diversity of our live show-half from our first album, and half from our (yet unreleased) second. We are a three piece, originally from North Carolina, with 7 years of playing, recording, and touring under our belts. Recently transplanted to the west coast, we are trying to build our connections here-we are beginning to book shows in the area and prepare to release our 2nd album, Malaka.
